The pro-European impetus generated by the election of President Emmanuel Macron, as well as the positions of the new French government and the current parliamentary majority on the future of Europe, mark a new era in the role that France is ready to play in the development of the European project and make the implementation of ambitious reforms possible in order to create a Europe that is more efficient and closer to its citizens.

On 20th October the Union of European Federalists and The Spinelli Group will hold a European meet-up in Paris under the title "Together- let's build a new Europe". On this occasion, we will bring together national and European politicians as well as civil society representatives to discuss the reforms to be carried out in order to make the European Union more democratic and more responsive to citizens' expectations.

The meet-up will be concluded by a round table with national and European personalities on the role of France in the completion of the European political unity.
